Open-Source Community Event

JUNE 9TH 2022

A brown bear is depicted in a white spacesuit with orange accents. The bear is floating in space, with its arms and legs slightly out. On the chest of the suit, the text 'JSHeroes' is written in blue and white. The bear has a friendly expression.

JSHeroes

JSHeroes 2022 is a one-day conference, organized by the JavaScript community from Cluj. We are inspired by the open source software model and aim to create a non-profit event, where budgets and organizational details are transparent and shared with the community.

Our Mission

We strongly believe that JavaScript is the future. Therefore, our mission is to provide an opportunity for growing and improving the skills in our local environment, and keep our community in sync with the latest advancements in the JavaScript ecosystem.

Designed By The Community

The community model is the best environment for learning, so part of our mission is to inspire and help other communities. We'll continue to publish, for the 4th edition as well, all data about this conference, in full transparency. This way, whenever the next javascripters wish to take over this event, they can build on our knowledge and the already created brand.

The background features several stylized planets and stars. In the top left, there is a purple planet with a ring and a larger purple planet with wavy patterns. In the top right, there is a large red and orange planet and a smaller blue planet. In the bottom left, there is a blue and white striped planet and a green and blue planet. In the bottom right, there is a green and blue planet. Scattered throughout are several yellow stars of varying sizes.

Safety-First Event

This will be our first in-person conference since 2019.

Taking into account the current global context of the pandemics, we plan to organize a safety-first event, thus we will limit the maximum number of participants to 300, along with implementing best practices that promote the safety of our participants and staff.

We Have Created A Single Sponsorship Package of 2000€

That includes:

Two mentions by posting on the event's social media pages

- one individual spotlight after we shake hands
- one post including all sponsors, right before the event

Your organization's logo

- on the event website
- on each participant's name badge
- on the Conference room screen, during all coffee and lunch breaks in the event aftermovie

Your organization's roll-up in the Conference room

You can send us personalized materials that will be placed in the giveaways corner

3 free tickets to the conference + Early Bird ticket price (90€ + VAT) available until April 15th, 2022

* for branding and not for recruiting

JSHeroes Speaker Testimonials

To me, JSHeroes is a lot about JavaScript, but even more about the actual heroes which make this great community - the attendees with their appetite for knowledge, and the organizers who thought of every little detail to make this conference a great party of knowledge sharing playground.

Liran Tal

I really love the format of the conference – single-track, so you can give your full attention to everything, lots of breaks so you can talk to people and ask your questions. The best part is that it's developed by a community, for the community, about community.
